From the Life of Martin Boos, THE FARMER'S WIFE.

A woman of the name of Klambaur had often stood at the clergyman's door, for the purpose of pouring out her heart to him, courage, went to him, and thanked him with many tears for all his sermons. Boos, who knew from her confessions, that she was still distressed and uneasy in her conscience told her to her face, that although she took pleasure in hearing his sermons on faith in perance Society was passing in the public Christ, and now had thanked him for them; stage from Baltimore to Washington, a genvet he was afraid she did not really believe what he preached.

"She said Oh yes, I believe all that you preach." . Boos. I doubt it. I perceive by your uneasiness and the distress which you carry about with you in your heart, because of your sins that unbelief still lodges within you saving many even of drunkards. There and that you cannot fully believe that God has been a case of a man in my employment, has also forgiven you your sins, for Christ's that has interested me very much. He was sake, and is willing to send his Holy Spirit a mechanic of the first order, married into into your heart."

She now began to weep, and said, "Yes, am certainly still defective in that respect: that God can forgive me everything.

"Boos. Klambaur, I am a greater sinner than you, yet was not only possible for God to pardon me, but also the sinner at the feet of Jesus, the woman of Samaria, Peter, Paul, the thief on the cross, &c. it will therefore be possible for him to pardon you. See, how you offend God at this moment by your unbelief. Shame upon you to sin in this manner before me, your pastor."

She wept more and more, and could not reply for weeping. She was terrified, and did not venture to repeat that she was too great a sinner, and that it was not possible for God to pardon her. Boos now convinced her from many passages of Scripture, that God pardons the greatest sinners through faith in Christ, that righteousness is attained, and received, not by works but by faith; and that in this respect there was ne difference between a farmer's wife, a clergyman, and a malefactor. (Rom. iii. 22, 26.)

"Therefore have the goodness, Klambaur," continued he, "and accept of a truly great gift, for the many alms which you have given to the poor, and to my chaplains who dine with you when they have to go to a distance. B lieve me, that God, our heavenly Father, loves you so much, that he is not only willing, to present you with a Jarge sum of money-not merely heaven and earth, but something even still greater-his only-begotton Son with all his righteousness and holiness, as a free than to believe, and to open your hands and heart, your mouth and ears to receive the mighty donation. Do you believe this?"

I must believe !"

canst not do otherwise!" Go in peace, thy sins are forgiven thee-thy saying that thou must believe has, saved thee,"

"Klambaur, But I cannot go yet ; I feel as happy as if I were in heaven; if you will permit me, I will stay a while longer. I never felt so during my whole life!" She stayed till the evening, and took home with your family, and be comfortable. But it her the peace of God which passeth all unstanding.

But three days after, she came again desponding and weeping, saving, "Ah, I have lost my peace, it is all over with me.

I shall scarcely be saved." "Boos. But why not?"

"Klambaur. Oh, because I am a farmer's wife, keep an inn, have a drunken husband, and am the mother of many children: I have too many temptations, distractions, and occupations; it will not do for me."

Boos smiled and said, "I am now sure that the faith you expressed three days ago is a true and real faith, since it is already so violently assaulted. Only take courage, let not your confidence fail. If there were any station in life, in which people could not believe in Jesus, and live and be happy in him. Jesus would never have commanded the gospel to be preached to every creature; he would have been obliged expressly to say Except to brewers, and inn keepers, and to women who have drunken husbands, many children and much company-preach it not to them, they cannot believe, and have not time to be saved. But Jesus has said no such thing. Therefore go boldly forward, keep your footing and cry, Stand back, Satan !"

"Klambaur. Well, then, I must try it once more; but I really thought I could not possibly be saved." And again she departed with the peace of God she had previously felt. But she afterwards frequently expressed the wish to be permitted to leave her husband, children, and inn keeping, and retire with this faith to some desert place. or little room in peuce.

"Not so," said Boos, "remain where you are, and where God has placed you. The apostles and primitive Christians retained their faith, their love, and inward peace in the midst, of the world, and they were, men like you and me." She therefore went on her way boldly and joyfully, and held fast her faith. Herself saved by faith, she sought also to save others; and she really succeeded with her female servant and her daughters, her sister, and some of her neighbours. In the year 1814, her husband died; she might then have retired into a little room. But now she said, "I have lived happily in faith for five years, whils: following my occupation; I will therefore not support himself, and gain several hundred retire from it. My children are still young.

I will bring them up as Christians, and God | fourteen hundred dollars Ob, this Temwill be a husband to me, and the father of perance Reformation is one of the noblest

'It goes well,' said the Secretary, they do the needful work; it will not go without labor.' 'It is making great pro. gress,' said he, in our part of the country. It is most surprising what it is doing. It is a respectable family, and was once a man of property. But he lost it, and became a drunkard. He had a large family of sons am too great a sinner; it is not possible and daughters. The mother struggled long and hard to support them, and sustain the family but it was too much; she sunk under it. For more than a year she had been confined to her room, the greater part of sinking to the grave. Not unfrequently they were entirely destitute of provisions; what was earned both by the father and sons was expended for liquor, till they sunk so low that nobody could trust them; and They were often idle, and when they work- be hasty either in commanding or threatened, they would undertake a job as quick for ing. THE IMPORTANCE OF THE SABBATH IN EDUCATION.

The importance of the Sabbath in Education is thus spoken of by Mr. Isaac Tay-

"And here I cannot avoid a passing reference to the fact, of the very happy influence of a due and fervent attendence upon religious exercises, public and private in bringing the mind home to its starting points, and in its recovery of that clearness and freshness of perception, and of that well poised self-control and easy appliancy which are lost in a course of severe application. I am prepared to affirm that, to the studious especially, and whether younger or older, a SUNDAY WELL SPENT--spent in happy exercise of the heart, devotional and domestic -- a Sunday given to the sout, is the best of all means of refreshment for the mere intellect. A Sunday so passed is a liquefaction of the entire nature-a dispersive process, dispelling mental cramps and stagnations, and enabling every single fa. culty again to get its due in the general diffusion of the intellectual power.'
